Rail Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission, by a 9-2 vote Friday, approved merger of two railroads which serve the southeastern corner of the United States.

Over objections of the Justice Department and railroad labor groups that the link might create a monopoly, Seaboard Air Line Railroad and the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad were given permission to unite in 30 days.

Germany, U.S.
Push NATO Fleet

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany and the United States will push ahead with plans to launch next year a test ship for the hotly controversial Atlantic alliance nuclear fleet, Defense Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel said Friday.

Despite powerful opposition, Hassel predicted that at least Turkey, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Greece would join the United States and West Germany in manning the test ship, a destroyer.

Von Hassel told a news conference Germany will supply six officers and 62 men and the United States 160 of the 320-man crew.

Lechin Offer To Quit Refused

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Victor Paz Estenssoro rejected Friday night an offer of resignation by his vice president in exchange for the release of two jailed Communist union leaders. The offer was made by leftist Vice President Juan Lechin, who said his offer included release of some hostages held by striking tin miners, including four Americans.

Lechin also heads the tin miners union.

Arabs Cheer
French Absence

BIZERTE, Tunisia (AP) — Leaders of the Arab world joined Tunisia Friday in celebrating the end of French military presence on its soil. Those present heard calls for unity against Israel.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria sounded appeals for unity and a fight against colonialism. President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia spoke with moderation and, while calling for Arab and African unity, did not mention the Israel problem.

Rusk Arrives For NATO Talks

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived at heavily guarded Orly Airport Friday night for an Atlantic alliance foreign ministers' meeting and a conference with President Charles de Gaulle.

Rusk carried a message from President Johnson to the semi-annual meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Council.

Rail Strike?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters has broken off negotiations with the nation's railroads and called a strike next Friday, a reliable source reported.

The dispute involves 4,000 porters who work for the Pullman Car Co., owned by 53 railroads, and several other lines that have their own sleeping cars and have exhausted all federal strike-delaying machinery.

Since Dec. 2, the porters have been free to strike without any further federal interference possible under the Railway Labor Act.

Last month, A. Philip Randolph, president of the AFL-CIO porters union, said a strike would tie up the nation's rail traffic.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Helped by government approval of a long-pending railroad merger and by some other bullish corporate news, the stock market Friday made its first clear-cut advance in six sessions. Trading was moderate.

Volume was a routine 43 million shares compared with 42 million Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average made a moderate gain of 2.74 at 760.17. The Dow Jones rails advanced 54 to 178.19, putting them at another high since 1956.

Assembly Passes
$72 Million Aid

HARRISBURG (AP) — The General Assembly early Monday completed action on $72 million worth of special aid bills, breaking a five-month stalemate that delayed payments to hundreds of colleges, universities and hospitals.

House Democrats ended their holdout on the bills, providing the support needed to reach the two-thirds majority required by the Constitution on such appropriations.

Within minutes, the waiting Senate agreed to minor correctional amendments to two bills and sent the entire 38-bill package to Gov. Scranton. The Senate had passed the bill earlier in the week.

Both houses met shortly after midnight to complete the action on the bills and wind up the final details of the two special sessions called by Scranton to consider the appropriations and legislative reapportionment.

The reapportionment bills were finished earlier this week, but the governor has not yet signed them.

Penn State Lion Share
Pennsylvania State University would receive the lion's share of the money, $25,000,000. Another $15,148,920 would go to 191 hospitals. Other large appropriations are: The University of Pittsburgh, $6.9 million; The University of Pennsylvania, $6.6 million, and Temple University, $6.5 million.

Most of the House's afternoon session was consumed by the introduction of 16 amendments by Democrats. All were rejected by the Republican majority. Earlier, the House had made correctional changes in two bills which required Senate concurrence later.

Rep. E. J. Farabaugh, D-Cambria, sought to win $1,000 appropriations for the Cresson and Ebensburg volunteer fire companies for furnishing protection to state institutions in those areas.

He argued that the two fire departments were entitled to the same consideration given the Harrisburg Fire Department, which receives $2,500 a year for protecting the main Capitol building.

Penn State Audit
Rep. Harry Kramer, D-Allentown, sought to require Pennsylvania State University to furnish a certified audit of its finances to the state auditor general's department.

Republicans replied that the university freely gives information on its finances to the legislature and that the additional filing is unnecessary. The proposal was defeated.

Rep. Eugene Gelfand, D-Philadelphia, proposed in a series of schools receiving state aid be required to give Pennsylvania students a 20 per cent discount on tuition.

Rep. Edwin McNally, D-Cambria, argued against most of the college-aid bills, claiming that they receive more state aid than called for in the bills through the General State Authority which constructs buildings for them.

Sales Tax Applies To Christmas Trees

HARRISBURG (AP) — "Yes, Virginia, there is a sales tax on Christmas trees."

That was the way the State Revenue Department reminded citizens Friday that the 5 per cent sales levy is due not only on trees but also on Christmas decorations and cards.

It makes no difference if the selling agent is a Boy Scout, church, charity or other non-profit agency, said the Revenue Department, adding that "any group planning to sell such items should obtain a temporary license from the bureau and collect the tax on the items sold."

Did Sinatra Captors Get Away With It?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Did the gang which kidnaped Frank Sinatra Jr. evade an FBI dragnet with $240,000 in small bills? The question arose Friday when the FBI released serial numbers of many of the ransom bills. This newest puzzle was but one of scores of intriguing questions still unanswered in the mysterious case.

The FBI list went to banks and financial institutions — indicating the ransom money could now be in circulation.

News Blackout
It was the first break in the FBI's five-day news blackout on the case the agency apparently is investigating almost exclusively.

The announcement came from the FBI's Washington headquarters. Agents here refused to verify that the gang made the pickup of the cash. But Sinatra Sr. has said he gave it to a federal courier for delivery at a West Los Angeles service station. His 19-year-old son was released about the same time 54 hours after his abduction from a Lake Tahoe motel.

The FBI said the money consisted of $70,000 in $100 bills, $35,000 in $50 bills, $80,000 in $20 bills, $40,000 in $10 bills and $15,000 in $5 bills.

In the wake of the ransom announcement, many questions remained unanswered including: Did a kidnap gang member flee a Canoga Park cottage before the FBI raided it Thursday? Who was the young man who walked up to agents at the house, spoke to them, and was driven away in an FBI car — hiding his face from newsmen?

Boxes Found
What was in boxes FBI men removed from the San Fernando Valley home?

Los Angeles police had their own questions about the case: Why haven't the descriptions of young Sinatra's kidnapers been released? Why haven't local officers been called into the case?

Mysteries still remained from the crime's first day — Sunday, when two gunmen abducted Sinatra Jr. from a Lake Tahoe lodge.

How did the kidnapers get him past roadblocks established when Sinatra's chum, John Foss, called officers minutes after the kidnapping?

Medical Education
In September, Congress completed work on a measure authorizing $231 million in loan and grants to improve and expand medical educational facilities.

A $1.2-billion authorization to assist college construction programs was sent to the White House last Tuesday.

All these are authorization measures setting ceilings on spending for which actual funds will be provided in later appropriation bills. It is not anticipated that authorized amounts will be trimmed very much.

Air Crashes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The jungles of Viet Nam yielded the bodies of three of four U.S. Servicemen killed in a helicopter crash, Vietnamese soldiers struggled toward a mountain top where four other Americans presumably died in the wreckage of their Army plane.

The two widely separated crashes came Thursday in one of the bloodiest days for Americans in the long war against the Communist guerrillas. If the four perished in the plane crash, the total of U.S. servicemen killed in combat and war-related action in the past two years will rise to 144.

The twin-engine helicopter crashed in the Mekong River delta 60 miles southwest of Saigon. The countryside there swarms with guerrillas, but whether Communist ground fire brought it down was not learned.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another $1.56-billion chunk of federal aid-to-education program sponsored by President John F. Kennedy cleared Congress Friday.

The Senate gave $2.4 approval to a compromise measure centered on an expanded vocational training program and sent it along to President Johnson. The three-part bill passed the House Thursday on a 300-63 roll call.

It is the third major aid-to-education bill passed in this session and the second sent to Johnson.

Foreign Aid Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress authorized a $3.6-billion foreign aid program Friday but a House Appropriations subcommittee recommended that the financing be held to about $3 billion.

The subcommittee's money bill, which would provide about $1.5 billion less than the late President John F. Kennedy requested, will be reviewed by the full 50-member House Appropriations Committee on Saturday.

Then, if that group approves it, the bill will be sent to the House floor for debate Monday.

Congressional action on the $3,599,050,000 authorization measure was completed after a sharp Senate fight led by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore.

'Monstrosity'
The Senate voted 61-26 to accept a Senate-House compromise which Morse denounced as a monstrosity. The House already had approved it.

The authorization measure, which sets the ceiling for foreign aid spending during the fiscal year that started last July 1, was sent to President Johnson.

Johnson and other top officials of the State and Defense departments had urged Congress not to endanger the program by further cuts.

Kennedy originally asked for a $4.9-billion program but scaled his request down to $4.5 billion.

Prior to the Senate roll call, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., joined Morse in attacking the compromise authorization bill.

Ellender said the Senate conferees "simply bowed down to the House managers and struck out every amendment of consequence."

This, Ellender said, resulted in the elimination of restrictions written into the measure by the Senate.

Included in the authorization are $1 billion for military assistance, $925 million for development loans, $220 million for development grants, $325 million for the Alliance for Progress in Latin America, $160 million for the President's contingency fund, and $380 million for supporting economic aid to defense pact allies.

Washington (AP) — Both Pennsylvania senators — Democrat Joseph S. Clark and Republican High Scott — voted with the majority Friday favoring the compromise $3.6 billion foreign aid authorization bill. The bill was sent to the White House by a vote of 61-26.

GOP Denies Goldwater Dissention

HARRISBURG (AP) — Two top level Republicans denied Friday that Gov. Scranton had stripped Paul Huges, Allegheny County GOP chairman, of his patronage power.

William G. Murphy, secretary to the governor who said he was speaking for Scranton, and Republican State Chairman Craig Truax quoted Huges in a joint statement as saying:

"The governor and I had a most pleasant and amiable visit Thursday. I have received no ultimatum that I'll be stripped of my patronage powers if I don't get off the Sen. Barry Goldwater bandwagon."

Huges conferred with Scranton half an hour Thursday. After the meeting, he said his position on Goldwater had changed.

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette said Huges had been stripped of his patronage authority because of his open support for Goldwater for the GOP presidential nomination.

Murphy and Truax said Friday: "We confirm that the statement by Paul is absolutely correct and add as a matter of fact that Mr. Huges has not been stripped of patronage powers."

Scranton
Can't Make It
To Camelback

TANNERSVILLE — Gov. William Scranton said yesterday that "an emergency" would prevent him from attending the opening of Camelback-in-the-Poconos today.

Charles R. Bensinger, vice president of the Camelback Ski Corp., said opening ceremonies would continue as planned with State Sen. William Z. Scott of Lansford doing the official ribbon-cutting at 11:30 a.m.

The slopes will open to the public at noon. Snow making machines worked through the night to add snow to the week's natural fall. The double chair lift will not be ready, but the T-Bar and J-Bar tows are expected to run today.

Skiing exhibitions by Camelback instructors are scheduled at 2:30 p.m. and a fashion show will take place at 3:30 p.m.

Khrushchev
Fights Back
Opponents

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev's supporters appeared Friday to have dislodged opponents of his ambitious new economic program, but the Soviet Communist party faced new difficulties — from the weather — in its drive to build up the Soviet standard of living.

The temperature Friday hit 11 below zero, another in a series of bitterly cold days which have driven frost deep into the ground and left the land mostly bare of its usual protective blanket of snow.

The freeze-up came as Khrushchev summarized for the Communist party Central Committee — at the final day of its session — the program proposed for converting retarded farms into producers of abundance, like those in the United States.

One development indicated Khrushchev was weeding out opponents of his program to build up the chemical industry with huge investments.

Washington (AP) — Both Pennsylvania senators — Democrat Joseph S. Clark and Republican High Scott — voted with the majority Friday favoring the compromise $3.6 billion foreign aid authorization bill. The bill was sent to the White House by a vote of 61-26.

Price Hikes Called

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson declared Friday he is counting on "the sense of responsibility of the nation's industrialists and labor leaders" to bar any upward spiral of wages and prices.

In another day of getting squared away in his new job the chief executive:

Promised diplomats from 111 nations the United States "will go our full share of the way toward peace," and urged them to join that effort with candor and understanding.

Pledged his administration will strive to forge "even stronger and closer" ties with Italy under its new government.

Became honorary chairman of a $6-million fund-raising drive to build a library at Harvard University to honor the memory of slain President John F. Kennedy.

Johnson made his statement on wages and prices before the Consumer Advisory Council, created by Kennedy to look after consumer interests.

Federal Busy Body
"Like our late president," Johnson said, "I do not believe that the federal government should be a meddling busy-body, sticking its nose into every aspect of private decision making. But I am deeply aware of the fact that a renewal of the price-wage spiral would endanger our domestic expansion and our international balance of payments."

Philadelphia
Mobster Arrested

BOSTON (AP) — Respected Angelo Bruno, 53, reported head of the Philadelphia clan of the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate, stepped from a transatlantic plane into the hands of five FBI agents Friday.

Bruno was arrested on an indictment returned in Philadelphia Oct. 31, charging he conspired to travel across state lines to commit extortion.

Bruno said he had been in Italy since September and was returning to Philadelphia to give himself up on a charge he claimed he knew nothing about.

The Pan-American plane had taken off from Paris en route to Philadelphia and had touched down in Boston for a 45-minute stop when the FBI stepped up to Bruno and put handcuffs on him.

Later, Thomas J. Jenkins, special agent in charge of the Boston FBI office, said: "We know that we had been looking for him as a fugitive and arrested him on sight."

After he was fingerprinted, photographed and questioned at FBI headquarters, Bruno was taken before U.S. Commissioner Francis H. Farrell for a hearing on the indictment.

$75,000 Bail
Farrell set bail at $75,000 with surety and continued the hearing until 10 a.m. Dec. 20.

Farrell said: "We are dealing here with the crime of extortion and threats of death with bodily harm already inflicted. Angelo Bruno probably was the ring-leader thereof."

The President told the elite of Washington diplomatic corps "we must be alert to points of danger, but equally alert for points of common interest. In great matters and small, we must move forward together."

"There is no other way for us all, on this small planet," he said.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buesscher

Scripture—Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 1-2.

As the number of Christian converts from the Gentiles grew, certain other Christians converted from Pharisee group of Jews insisted that the Gentiles conform to Mosaic law. A council was held in Jerusalem to decide the question for all the churches.—Acts 15:1-6.

The council decreed that the Gentiles would not have to be circumcised, but only keep certain moral laws, including chastity. Not the law, but grace was important. They chose a Hebrew and a Hellenist to carry the decree back to Antioch.—Acts 15:19-34.

The pillars of the church at Jerusalem recognized the apostolic authority of Paul, former Pharisee persecutor of Christians, who received the Gospel not from men, but from God, through revelation of Christ. He taught some time before knowing the others.—Galatians 1:11-2:10.

That Paul was true to his ministry and true to the doctrine of grace was illustrated when he rebuked the great apostle Peter in public, because Peter, swayed by the Pharisees, did not associate with the Gentiles.—Galatians 2:11-14.

GOLDEN TEXT: Romans 1:16.

Today's Lesson:

Entrusted With The Gospel

By N. Speer Jones

The title of this week's lesson is clarified for us when we understand that it is Paul, in this case who is entrusted with the Gospel, and that the doctrine he preaches in salvation by the grace of Christ, not by law or good works.

The selection from Acts records a very important episode in Christian history a council held in Jerusalem in 50 A.D., where the leading representatives of many of the Christian churches met to debate matters arising from the conversion of the Gentiles, so that the church might maintain a single united policy, rather than splitting asunder in argument.

Some of the converted Jews in the Christian church, especially the erstwhile Pharisees (strictest of the Jewish parties), were insisting that the precepts of the Mosaic law be followed by the newly converted Gentiles, including circumcision.

Peter, in the council, asserted that it was the grace of Christ which saved, not ritual or law. Then James, brother of Christ, spoke; his words carried great weight with the Pharisees, and both Jews and Christians called him James the Just. He refers to Peter by his Hebrew name, Simon or Symeon.

The upshot of the conference was that Gentiles were not required to be circumcised, but only to abstain from certain things, including unchastity. The latter is mentioned specifically, because the Levitical law against it was extremely strict, whereas among the pagans (Gentiles), unchastity was often a part of even the temple rites. To carry the decree to Antioch, the council sent one Jew, Judas Barsabbas, and one who was apparently a Hellenist, a Roman citizen (16:37) with a Latin name — Silvanus, which is the more formal form of Silas.

Present at this Jerusalem Council was Paul, who seven years later wrote his letter to the Galatians. It is generally thought that this is the occasion described in 2:1-10, although some scholars feel that he describes here a different visit to Jerusalem.

"Galatia" was an abbreviated form of the word "Gallatica," or Greek Gaul. It was an area in central Asia Minor, wild country with difficult terrain and little civilization, the people characterized by changeableness and emotionalism. To such people, easily swayed by the oratory of imposters, Paul wrote the only recorded letter we have of his, which begins with a rebuke. He chastized Peter for listening to any gospel other than what he had taught them.

To emphasize the truth of the Gospel he preached, Paul reminded the Galatians that he had not received it from men, but from God, through revelation to him, a zealous persecutor of Christians (1:10-24). Here he related how he went away into Arabia, a thinly populated land, probably to reflect alone on what happened to him (1:17). Only after three years did he visit Jerusalem, the center of his new faith; then he visited with Peter (Cephas) for two weeks (1:18).

Then he reminded them that his apostolic authority was acknowledged by the Jerusalem church (2:1-10), and that he was so unswerving in his obedience to his ministry that he even rebuked the great leader Peter in public (2:11-14).

Then Paul returns to the core of his message, justification by grace (2:15-21). The very heart of his argument is contained in the final verse; if justification were by good works or the law, then Christ died to no avail.

Parson To Parson

by Roderick MacLeod

"TELL ME DAD" "Tell me, tell me true, — Is there a Santa Claus?" With these words my son Douglas shattered the calm of our evening meal. His big blue eyes appealed to his mother for the answer. She in turn, focused big blue eyes upon Dad and threw a neat forward pass — "You answer, Dad," she said.

Dad choked on a morsel of food, and uttered a gruff "Eat your dinner son." "Please Dad, I want to know the truth," "He pleaded. There just wasn't any one else that I could pass this question on to. The other two children had been told years ago, but now I had forgotten the formula.

"Tell me, Dad — what about Santa Claus?" He asked again. It is a most difficult task to explain to a child that one of his most cherished fantasies is just a myth. Yet truth will out and it must be done in such a way so as to still keep the enchantment and wonder of it all intact.

"Well son," I began, "There is a Santa Claus, however, not in the way that you now think. Your mother and I are your Santa Claus. It is pleasant to make people happy especially your own children, so we exchange gifts at Christmastime as a remembrance of the great Gift that God gave to earth to lead men into the paths of love. The long awaited Messiah had come, and man, unable to attain God's Grace through his own deeds can now approach the Father through His Son.

"As the wise men of the east brought expensive gifts to the baby Jesus, parents today give presents to their children as a token of love. Many, many years ago a bishop by the name of St. Nicholas, patron saint of Russia; the special protector of children, scholars, merchants and sailors, originated the custom of giving presents on Christmas Eve.

"The custom spread into Holland and thence to American by the early Dutch colonists. Christmas in Holland was called 'Sinterklass' hence the American corruption of the word into Santa Claus. So you see, there really was a Santa Claus who loved little children, St. Nicholas, bishop of Myra.

"Today, this custom has gotten out of hand and many people have lost the true meaning of Christmas in the commercialism of exploiting Christ's birthday to make money. Santa Claus has taken the place of Christ in the hearts of many many children. Parents neglect their duty to tell their children the wonderful story of Christ who loved little children. Instead, they offer a false god to capture the imagination of innocent minds.

"Yes, Douglas, there is a Santa Claus — your mommy and daddy. Always remember, Christmas is celebrating the birth of Christ and no other person real or imagined will ever take His place!"

Douglas concentrated on this with all the wisdom of his six years, nodded his understanding of the situation, and then announced, "Well, Santa, remember that I want a Big Bruiser for Christmas!"

Bloodmobile In S-burg Monday

STROUDSBURG — Strong support of Monday's blood drive was urged yesterday by Mrs. Helen Green, executive director of the Monroe County Chapter, American Red Cross.

She said: "The upcoming Christmas and New Year's holidays, with their predicted high accident toll, will place a heavy burden on the Regional Blood Center. It would be terrible if some unfortunate accident victim were to lose his life because blood was not available."

10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church Monday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Monroe Security Bank and Trust Company, sponsor of Monday's drive, will give away six turkeys following the Bloodmobile visit. The Christmas turkeys will go to six donors after a drawing of names by a blindfolded Red Cross nurse.

John Baynor, drive chairman, said: "It will be our way of saying thanks to the wonderful people who will be giving the most precious Christmas gift of all — the gift of life."

The Red Cross will deliver the turkeys the following day to the homes of the winners.

Baby-Sitting Service

Baby-sitting service will be available at the church for mothers who wish to donate. Donors who need transportation may obtain it by calling Red Cross headquarters, 421-0660.

Modern Face-Lifting Set For Stroudsburg Landmark

STROUDSBURG — The American House at 765 Main St., Stroudsburg, a longtime landmark for local residents and familiar to thousands of visitors to the Poconos, will undergo an extensive renovation in the near future.

Edward A. Katz, one of the new owners of the building, said yesterday that a decision on who will be the contractor for the work has not been decided. The renovation is expected to be completed by next June 1.

The renovation will connect the hotel with an adjacent building now used as offices and apartments. The renovated structure will be three stories high.

During its transformation into a hotel and transportation center, the American House will continue to be operated as a

EAST STROUDSBURG — Donald Heller, East Stroudsburg clothing store proprietor, said that he was not the East Stroudsburg businessman who was quoted in The Daily Record yesterday as saying:

"We feel that people who go out of town to do their Christmas shopping are detrimental to our business and more of this is going on all the time."

"I am very grateful for the people that I do and the way people have treated me. That is the last thing I would say," Heller said.

Albert Koster of L. J. Koster Variety Store, who made the comment but was incorrectly identified as a spokesman for an East Stroudsburg clothing store, said his comment was an explanation of the good effect of the snow on business.

"Normal snow will put people in the holiday spirit and keep them from going out of town. Snow keeps people in the area and helps business in Monroe County," he said.

Modern Face-Lifting Set For Stroudsburg Landmark

STROUDSBURG — The American House at 765 Main St., Stroudsburg, a longtime landmark for local residents and familiar to thousands of visitors to the Poconos, will undergo an extensive renovation in the near future.

Edward A. Katz, one of the new owners of the building, said yesterday that a decision on who will be the contractor for the work has not been decided. The renovation is expected to be completed by next June 1.

The renovation will connect the hotel with an adjacent building now used as offices and apartments. The renovated structure will be three stories high.

During its transformation into a hotel and transportation center, the American House will continue to be operated as a

Business Statement Explained

EAST STROUDSBURG — Donald Heller, East Stroudsburg clothing store proprietor, said that he was not the East Stroudsburg businessman who was quoted in The Daily Record yesterday as saying:

"We feel that people who go out of town to do their Christmas shopping are detrimental to our business and more of this is going on all the time."

"I am very grateful for the people that I do and the way people have treated me. That is the last thing I would say," Heller said.

Albert Koster of L. J. Koster Variety Store, who made the comment but was incorrectly identified as a spokesman for an East Stroudsburg clothing store, said his comment was an explanation of the good effect of the snow on business.

"Normal snow will put people in the holiday spirit and keep them from going out of town. Snow keeps people in the area and helps business in Monroe County," he said.

Camelback Opening

A major new Pocono Mountain industry will be opened today by the Camelback Ski Corp.

It is Camelback-in-the-Poconos, the biggest ski development in the Pocono Mountain area.

It was designed by Walter Foeger of Natur-Teknik skiing fame with ten ski trails, a double chair lift, as well as T-Bar and J-Bar with total uphill lifting capacity of 2,800 skiers per hour, and complete snow-making machinery.

Camelback was artfully carved through the wooded north slope of Big Pocono Mountain at Tannersville just off new Interstate Rt. 80.

It is of course a commercial venture by ski enthusiasts. But it also promises to help the winter resort business of the whole Pocono Mountain area.

Already a few more summer resorts have decided to stay open through the winter because of Camelback. Already Pocono Manor has decided to install snow-making equipment of its own. Mt. Airy Lodge has added a ski run and Buck Hill Falls, which is celebrating its inauguration of skiing in the Poconos 50 years ago, will benefit from the added attraction of skiing in this area.

The Pocono Ski Resort Assn. of 30 hotels and lodges which are offering special ski-week and ski-weekend packages has come to life because of Camelback.

It is expected to provide 55 new jobs this season and more in the future as the development is expanded.

The federal government has shown its faith in the new ski area by approving a $316,500 loan through the Area Redevelopment Administration.

Governor Scranton has shown his interest in skiing and in the economy of the Pocono Mountains by pushing this project.

Even the weatherman has been generous this week with a few inches of snow to brighten the opening of Camelback.

We hope it will be successful, not only for itself but for the winter economy of the whole Pocono Mountain area.

Walter Lippmann

We Must Discuss Line Of Succession

By Walter Lippmann

Speaker McCormack, who now stands next in line to the President, is naturally enough diffident about discussing the problem of the Presidential succession. But the country cannot take his view that the matter is too horrible to think about, much more to talk about.

The problem is of the highest importance, and there should be no more squeamishness about discussing it than there is when a man or woman makes a will.

The law which has put the speaker to unexpectedly where he now finds himself was proposed only in 1945 during the emotional upset following President Roosevelt's death, and passed in 1947. What it did was to insert into the line of succession — President, secretary of state and so forth — two members of Congress — the speaker of the House and the president of the Senate.

The theory of the bill was that the man who becomes President should owe his place in the line of succession to an election, not to an appointment. In fact, the 1947 law did not adhere to this principle. For after naming the two members of Congress, it went back to the old line beginning with the secretary of state.

Defenders of the 1947 law appeal to the principle of election on the mystical ground, that because Mr. McCormack has been elected repeatedly from the 9th District of Massachusetts, he has become thereby anointed and qualified for President. Applied to the concrete facts, the "principle" is nonsense, and it has no relation whatsoever to any real choice of the President by the will of the people.

There are several very grave objections to the present law. One is that, because the congressional system operates by seniority and whatnot, it has provided a successor who is unprepared and unqualified to succeed. Nobody has ever given five minutes' thought to the qualifications of the man who may be the next President of the United States.

Under the old law, where the next in line would be the secretary of state, the fact that he might become President would become a great consideration in his appointment and his confirmation by the Senate. The reality of this was proved in 1945 when President Truman's accession left Secretary Stettinius as the next in line.

Though Edward Stettinius was a nice man, he was manifestly unqualified to be President, and a great agitation arose at once which brought about his replacement as secretary of state by a man of vast experience in government, James Byrnes of South Carolina.

There is another radical defect in the present law. In our system of government, it has happened many times that one or both of the houses of Congress is controlled by the opposition party. It happened, for example, both to President Truman and to President Eisenhower. Under the badly considered 1947 law, the whole administration of the government can be transferred from one party to the other by the act of one sniper.

There should never be such a premium on the assassination of a President offered to criminal lunatics or conspirators to brood upon. The very thing that has sustained the country since Nov. 22 has been the continuity of the Presidency, the undisputed accession of a completely-qualified man. Had there been any intelligible purpose in the assassination, it would have been defeated.

The sovereign principle of continuity is sacrificed in the law of 1947, and we ought lose no time in wiping it off the statute books. We should return to the old law, which would put Secretary Rusk next in line, and then we should let Congress and public opinion make it known to President Johnson, as they did to President Truman in 1945, whether they are content.

There is a way, undoubtedly an organic part of the intent of the Constitution, in which real deference can be paid to the principle of election. We know from James Madison that the authors of the Constitution meant to leave to Congress "a supply of the vacancy (in the office of President) by an intermediate election of the President." Congress was to decide whether to call an intermediate election.

It would be quite feasible, and perhaps desirable, to provide that, when the line of succession reaches the secretary of state or the other Cabinet officers, the man who takes over the office shall be only the acting President until a new election can be held at mid-term or at the end of the four-year term.

I think, myself, that this ancient formula should also apply to the Vice President when he succeeds. It would not affect President Johnson, who must face the voters in less than 12 months.

If we arouse ourselves enough to deal firmly with the problem of the succession, we should proceed at once to repair the other great hole in our system, which is what to do when a President is incapacitated, as were Garfield and Wilson, and for a time, Eisenhower. Nobody will, I think, propose that the speaker of the House should, or that constitutionally he could, serve also as the acting President.

Dear Abby

Honesty Is The Best Policy!

DEAR ABBY: What is expected of a divorcee? When asked on a date, should she tell him she has been married and has children? I did that once, and I got the third degree. "How long was I married?" "How long was my ex-husband now?" Why did we split up?" I don't think it's any man's business unless he is serious about me. Please tell me, truthfully, how much should a divorced woman tell a man about herself on the first date?

DIVORCED MOTHER

DEAR DIVORCED: A man has a right to assume that a woman is NOT a divorcee with children unless she tells him otherwise. (This much information she owes him.) A good rule to follow is: State your marital status (and children, if any) right off the bat. And answer any other questions with complete honesty. If a man asks, it means he's interested.

DEAR ABBY: This idea that the typical housewife does nothing all day but drink coffee with her neighbors and watch TV because she is surrounded by so many push-button, labor-saving devices makes me boil. When people first meet me and learn that I do not have a career, they say, "Oh, you don't work, do you?" I reply, "No, I just sponge off my husband." I have yet to see a completely "automatic" washer that collects the clothes, sorts them, puts them in, starches them, mends them, and puts them away, have you? All the wom-

(The following statement was made by U.S. Rep. Fred B. Rooney of Bethlehem during Thursday, Dec. 5, day of eulogies to the late President Kennedy in the House of Representatives.)

Mr. Speaker, although I am relatively new Member of this legislative body, it was my great honor to have known and been associated with our late, beloved President, John F. Kennedy, for many years before my election to the Congress.

I first met him in 1956. I came to know him better in the years intervening. In 1958, the President—then serving as a Senator from Massachusetts—came to Easton in Northampton County in my district to make a public appearance.

Then, as always, he impressed the people of my area in Pennsylvania as a man of enormous compassion and magnificent insight into the great difficulties confronting mankind in modern society.

In July of this past year, following the death of my great and esteemed predecessor, Congressman Francis E. Walter, I was selected to be the Democratic nominee to fill the vacancy in the Congress.

Rooney For Kennedy
Throughout the campaign in July, I made it perfectly clear that I was strongly and unswervingly allied with the President's policies, in general, and with his desires for a strong civil rights measure and a tax cut to stimulate our economy, in particular. I ran, during that campaign as a liberal Democrat—against the advice, I might add, of several persons within my district. I do not regret having done so—and I believe that the actions of my constituents in electing me to this seat by a 7,000-vote margin would indicate that they agreed with me in that respect.

Supports Kennedy
I am convinced, today, as I was in 1960 at the Democratic National Convention, that my party nominated the two men best qualified — by experience, by temperament and by native intelligence — to serve all the people of this Nation as their highest officials.

There should be no doubt in anyone's mind, now—if there ever was before — that Lyndon Baines Johnson and John Fitzgerald Kennedy were allied philosophically in the single struggle to make the American dream a reality. But President Kennedy did not live. He was cut down by some quality of madness, some maniac's reasoning that none of us here in this room will ever fully understand.

His Soul Lives
We have put John Fitzgerald Kennedy's body to rest now in Arlington Cemetery. But his soul will not rest, his spirit walks the Halls of this Congress today and we must not let his memory rest and die away within us, within our minds and hearts. It is — and it must be — a bright flame burning at the center of our collective conscience, as Congressmen and as his countrymen.

Who Is To Blame
And yet the voices are already rising across the land, saying that it was a terrible, tragic thing — but, after all, none of us were really to blame. Is that true? Is that really true?

Can we say, in good conscience, that there is no blame upon this Nation, that those who spoke with hate and malice and bigotry before can be absolved of guilt in this senseless, futile killing? I pray that none of us here in this room believes that the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy was an accident of fate. That it was the work of insanity, we do not and will not deny.

Climate Of Hate
But even the most insane deed is committed in the right climate of opinion. And the climate of opinion in a country is created by many forces, not just a few. There will be many memorials to John F. Kennedy.

Eulogy In Congress

Rooney Urges Tocks Dam Be Named After Kennedy

Some of them will be just, lasting, and fitting tributes to a man who cared more deeply about this country than anything in his own life.

One of those memorials has already been proposed to this Congress and I am in full agreement with those who wish to see the National Cultural Center become the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Memorial Center. No President in America's history believed more firmly that the strength of our country was founded upon its intellectual and esthetic development.

Kennedy At Milford
Less than 2 months before his death, President Kennedy flew to Milford, Pa., in Pike County, in my district. He went there at the beginning of a great nationwide tour in the interests of conservation. He went there to dedicate a research center commemorating the life and work of a great Pennsylvania Republican Governor, Gifford Pinchot, who was our State's first genuine conservationist.

But he went, also, to remind us that the majesty and grandeur of our natural surroundings must be preserved, that we must do all within our power to prevent the ravages of floodwaters such as those that laid waste to Pike and Monroe and Northampton Counties in Pennsylvania during Hurricane Diane in August of 1955.

Young Admirer
He loved people, too — and it was a basic part of his personality to want to be with them wherever they were, in crowds, on the streets, or at the seashore. I remember that beautiful September 24 of this year when John F. Kennedy finished his formal talk at Milford and stepped down to shake hands with the hundreds of men and women who had come to hear him.

Tocks Island Dam
That is why he was so concerned with the development of Tocks Island Dam and national recreation area on the Delaware River in my district in Pennsylvania.

And that is why I am humbly hopeful that his family and the Members of the Congress may look with favor upon a proposal to give his name to this magnificent reservoir and recreation area. It will be the largest of its kind in eastern America. It will serve between 20 to 30 million people — approximately 11 to 15 per cent of our total national population.

I can think of no more dignified or fitting means of keeping his memory alive in the minds of such a large segment of the American people. Surely, it is obvious that John Fitzgerald Kennedy took with him in death the prayers and blessings of the vast majority of citizens in this country. He was loved in life by countless millions, not only here, but in other nations beyond our borders.

He is loved, in death, as few men have ever been. He will be remembered, for his cause was the fulfillment of America.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

Deer Hunting Defended: Star Spangled Banner, Firearms

A Deer Means Tenderloin, Steaks, Hamburgers

Editor, The Daily Record:

I first glanced at the Jovan DeRocco letter in the Saturday Daily Record in the midst of baking a batch of cookies for Christmas and immediately my mind was off in several directions at once.

I thought, "Oh well, everyone is entitled to his own opinion for what it is worth to others," and in the second thought was amazed to think that a man could put himself in the position of an animal whose purpose is to be born, live in fleeting beauty and then provide food for those supposedly higher up in the realm of life.

If we were to be equal to them in life and love, why don't we walk on four legs and sport horns?

Why don't we live a completely love them and leave them life, make no provisions for the care of our families, and crawl off alone to die leaving no one to mourn?

This is the way of deer and other animals. Does man fit in here by the instincts of nature and the way of God?

According to Mr. or Mrs. DeRocco, I'm supposed to compare the look in my husband's eyes to the look in those large innocent dark unsuspecting eyes of a deer.

Phoo! When I look at my husband's eyes I see love and in my children's eyes I see admiration and promise and as it should be.

When I look at a deer while spotlighting or otherwise I see tenderloin, steaks and hamburgers and my husband sees horns, tenderloin, steaks and hamburgers.

Yes, we and many like us look forward to deer season like Santa Claus because of the good things in store for us.

A deer represents food to us. It has always been the mainstay of our meals for the winter.

Another good reason we go for it is because it is so economical since for a license costing $3.15 we can get, if we are lucky, meat which comparable to beef prices would cost 10 to 15 times as much.

Venison, like beef, pork or fish, has a taste all its own which you get only when you have it to enjoy, and enjoy it we do. It is the leanest of all lean meats and we have never had to put a roast through the grinder to serve it like we did a beef roast for which I paid $4.56.

Even people disliking a deer roast will still rave over one of the delicious hamburgers made by adding a little pork in a one to three pound ratio.

Grotesque, the statement on India.

I quote, "Then why not go to India where there are millions of homeless folk, dying of starvation in the streets and shoot some of them and carry them off triumphantly draped over the hoods of our cars."

Where, oh where can he or she find the smallest inkling of comparison in shooting a deer to taking the life of a fellow human, let alone appear in print.

The hunters don't go into the woods with the thought to make deer suffer and die needlessly. They go well armed and practiced so that the kill is swift and merciful and if by chance a deer should be wounded, the true hunter will track the animal until he gets it.

Do you think that all those tame animals in the slaughterhouses meet a swift death?

If so, get a copy of the Readers Digest for January, 1962, and read the article "Let Us Have Mercy On These Dumb Animals."

This article lists the gunshot as a means of rendering an animal insensible for slaughter and brings to light some of the deplorable sufferings of these tame animals.

To the question: Is it better to be manly or humane? Can you be one without the other? I think not because one is made up of the other. A manly person is humane and long suffering to all around him and a humane person is the one who stands the tallest and walks the proudest in any situation, therefore no one can say he is not manly.

As for the poet who sang he would give anything in this world if he could be the friend of a deer, my thoughts are that he should give all of this thanks to God who made the decision for him and allowed him to stand tall, walk on two legs and become a part of the human race.

Lumber Co. Building Praised

Editor, The Daily Record:
I feel that it is time that someone expresses public appreciation for the wonderful job at the R. C. Cramer Lumber Co.

They have turned an eyesore into a fine structure which makes a pleasing picture to those passing by either on foot, car or train.

It would have been sufficient to just enclose that portion of the lumber yard but instead they have painted the building in two-tone pastels and landscaped with fine foundation planting.

They are to be commended for the fine example they have set and it is hoped that others will follow suit.

Proposed Firearms Laws Must Be Effective, Necessary

Editor, The Daily Record:

I would like to submit some food for thought concerning your editorial in the Record this morning, Dec. 9, entitled "Strict Firearms Laws."

The following is a reprint of an editorial printed in "The American Rifleman," the voice of The National Rifle Assn. This from the February issue of this year.

Test of a Gun Law

The U.S. Congress and 47 state legislatures will convene in regular session during 1963. Those of us who enjoy guns and shooting must organize our efforts and see to it that any proposed firearms laws are properly evaluated.

Many anti-gun laws will be presented by persons who believe that such a law will prevent crime and accidental shootings.

Others will be advanced by individuals or groups who seek, through legislation, greater assistance in the arrest and conviction of criminals. Others may be advocated by those persons who would like to see America become a disarmed nation.

Most present-day firearms legislation is pointed in the wrong direction. It disarms the honest law-abiding citizen, while it fails miserably in its avowed purpose of disarming the criminal. It is aimed at outlawing the gun rather than punishing the criminals who use the gun for illegal purposes.

No legislation can prevent gangsters from securing and using guns, but proper legislation can severely penalize the illegal use of guns and send to prison, for long periods of time, criminals caught doing so.

Shooting accidents, which are caused primarily by ignorance of proper gun handling and carelessness, cannot be prevented by more laws but can be reduced by education.

The desire to see our laws adequately enforced is never justification for additional legislation which can make a prudent law-abiding citizen an unwitting violator or infringe his right against illegal search and seizure.

Law-abiding citizens who believe in the right to keep and bear arms must be alert and active.

We must seek the support of the millions of reputable citizens who own guns and use them properly.

We must educate public officials and people in general about the importance of firearms in American history; about the positive values of shooting and hunting; about the hunter safety and marksmanship training programs of the National Rifle Assn. of America, which has conducted safe and worthwhile shooting activities for millions of people, youth and adult alike, for almost a century.

When some form of firearms control measure is under consideration, we must make certain that it meets the test of a gun law:

1. Is it an enforceable law?

2. For what purpose is the law intended, and will it actually achieve that purpose?

3. Could the law be used by an unscrupulous party to extend or perpetuate its own power?

4. Is the law really necessary or does it merely contribute to a network of technical restrictions which can trip a conscientious sportsman into being an unintentional violator?

5. Is the law an attempt to accomplish by prohibition what can be accomplished only by education and training?

The right of American citizens to keep and bear arms, as with all other individual rights, is effective only to the degree that we are willing to meet the obligations of freedom.

Only by eternal vigilance can these rights be protected and our nation remain free. We who have the greatest stake in preserving the right to keep and bear arms must make certain that any proposed firearms legislation meets the Test of a Gun Law. (End of editorial.)

All of us as interested citizens, would do well to keep the foregoing in mind in the interest of preserving this country as one of the few remaining nations of the world. Thank you.

Fifth Grade Argues For Singing The Star Spangled Banner

Editor, The Daily Record:

We think that we should sing the Star Spangled Banner whenever it is played to show our love for our country.

When we sang the Stars Spangled Banner at the football game, everyone looked at us as if we were foolish. We sang because we are proud of our country.

When we sang everyone thought we were foolish but actually they were foolish.

President Kennedy died to keep our freedom, and people didn't have enough respect to sing our anthem.

We hope that the next time the Star Spangled Banner is played, everyone will have enough respect to sing. This would be a memorial to President Kennedy.

About Town

"Is she a messy housekeeper?" said one woman to another. "I was at her home one day when the phone rang—and she couldn't find it."

George Jessel told this one on the Carson show:

Two elderly brothers heard that it would cost $250 million to dig a tunnel under the English channel to France. They got in touch with the Prime Minister and offered to do the job for $250,000. The Minister asked them how?

"One of us will start digging from England and the other

"But what if you miss?" the minister asked.

"Oh then," said the other brother, "you'll have two tunnels."

Three Men Meet Destiny In Dallas

EDITOR'S NOTE—Out of the diversity that is America; over different routes and byways, three men came to Dallas to fulfill their destinies. For a few brief hours their lives intertwined, and the confrontation shook the world. Here is a gripping account of that collision.

By JULES LOH
AP Staff Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — What incredible irony of fate brought these three together for their rendezvous with history; three lives so totally alien one to the other in character and mien and purpose?

John Fitzgerald Kennedy: president, world leader, scion of Eastern wealth and culture, talented, witty and vibrant, handsome champion of peace and justice whose ideals beckoned nobly to an uneasy world.

Lee Harvey Oswald: sullen, fugal, frustrated ne'er-do-well whose demonic pursuit of Marxist nostrums led him everywhere and nowhere.

Jack Leon Ruby: Gregarious parasite with a quick temper and a silk necktie whose lust for what he considered "class" was satisfied in the haze and din of a two-bit strip joint.

Three Paths
Somehow the three disparate paths led inexorably to Dallas, collided violently, and in the span of 48 hours of wicked pointlessness became irretrievably joined in the crime of the century.

This is the conclusion of investigators whose thick dossier of evidence proves to their satisfaction that Lee Harvey Oswald and no one else shot John F. Kennedy. What follows here, of course, is based on that conclusion. As for Ruby, thousands watched his deed enacted; a jury will decide his guilt.

At 11:37 a.m. Central Standard Time on Friday, Nov. 22, the black wheels of the presidential jet touched the runway at Dallas' Love Field with simultaneous puffs of blue smoke. Then the plane whined its way to gate 23 at the eastern edge of the airport.

At that moment Lee Harvey Oswald was shuffling quietly, almost unnoticed, among stacks of books in a seven-story rust brick building at 411 Elm St., filling orders for school texts.

And at the same moment, four blocks away, Jack Ruby was dabbing at his pudgy face with a paper napkin as he lingered over his morning coffee at a table in the cafeteria on the second floor of the Dallas Morning News building.

First Time Together
The lives of none of these three men had begun in Texas. But at this moment all three—Kennedy, Oswald, Ruby—were by the machinations of fate together in Dallas for the first time. The president had come on a political visit, and it had been a triumphant one. The crowds—at San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth, and now at Love Field—were never more enthusiastic. The president had never seemed in brighter spirits; his wife never more radiant.

Oswald, out of work for three months and piqued over fruitless efforts to get quick visas in Mexico to return to the Soviet Union, had come to Dallas merely to take a $125-an-hour job.

Ruby had lived in Dallas 14 years. He came here from Chicago to help his sister run a dinky nightclub, the Carousel, and later took over its management. He liked to wear fancy Western duds and call people "podnah;" they in turn used to refer to him wryly as the "Chicago cowboy." In later years he forsook the boots and Stetsons, but still was known occasionally to tote a gun. Dallas was where Jack Ruby had come to find himself.

Leave Airport
The presidential entourage, pulled out of the airport's main entrance at 11:52 a.m. and headed south toward downtown Dallas.

The day was gorgeous. Rain had been forecast but about 11 a. m. a brisk breeze blew in from the north and brushed away the dark clouds. Dallasites congratulated themselves on their luck: The president wouldn't have to ride beneath the hubbub after all.

When the motorcade reached Lemon Avenue and Lomo Alto Street at noon a group of school girls waved a sign frantically. "Mr. President," it said, "Please Stop and Shake Our Hands."

The president grinned, the convertible halted, the girls giggled, rushed forward and clutched at his outstretched hand.

As the triumphal procession rolled steadily along gently winding Turtle Creek Boulevard and swung onto Cedar Springs Road, the crowds along the curbs began to thicken. It was 12:10 p.m.

Jack Ruby walked into the display ad department of the Dallas News and asked for John Newman, who handled his account. Newman wasn't in. Ruby sat down at his desk to wait.

"What a lousy business I'm in," he remarked to adman Donald Campbell. "But if I got into something else I'd probably have just as many headaches maybe more."

Lee Oswald was still hanging around on an upper floor of the Texas School Book epostory even though his 45-minute lunch period was already 10 minutes old.

"Let's go down and see the president," a coworker said.

Fast Lunch
"No. You go on down—and send the elevator back up." At 238 Glencairn St. in Oak Cliff, Patrolman J. D. Tippit wolfed his lunch. His wife protested when he got up to leave early. He explained that so many of the force were on special duty downtown he'd better get back to his patrol car. He said he might be needed for some emergency.

The motorcade moved slowly down Main Street. When it reached Houston street it turned right a block. It would turn left again on Elm and swoop beneath the triple underpass then turn right onto Stemmons Freeway.

The big clock on the Mercantile National Bank moved determinedly toward 12:30 p.m.

Assassin Takes Aim

The assassin rested his 6.5mm six-shot rifle on a stack of boxes at the half-opened 10th-floor window in the southeast corner of the book building. He looped the leather sling around his wrist to steady the weapon in his palm and squinted through the four-power telescopic sight, the rifle stock pressed firmly against his cheek. With such a scope you can count the buttons on a man's coat at 75 yards.

The rifle barked once. Then twice more.

The president's hands jerked instinctively toward his throat but he never really knew what hit him. Texas Gov. John B. Connally pitched forward in his seat. The blue convertible paused momentarily, then bolted forward at top speed beneath the underpass and on to Parkland Hospital.

On the street below the window H. L. Brenna, a steamfitter, glanced up at the first shot. "I saw him. The gun was kicking out the window. I saw him fire a second time. He didn't seem to be in no hurry."

The assassin dashed to the opposite corner of the building and tossed the rifle behind a stack of boxed basic readers. Then he ran down the rear staircase, stopping at the second floor.

A policeman, a pistol in hand, rushed into the building and with the firm's manager, R. S. Truly, began a search. The policeman noticed Oswald.

"Does this man belong in here?"

"Yes," said Truly. "He works here."

Oswald Slips Out
Oswald slipped out of the building and into the frightened crowd. He worked his way through the milling mob, went a block north, turned right on Pacific Street and walked briskly for six blocks to Griffin Street.

Judge At Ruby Trial

EDITOR'S NOTE — All the world will have its eyes on Texas when the man who killed the accused assassin of President Kennedy is tried on a murder charge. Foreign ideas of American justice will be influenced by what happens then—and so will American ideas of Texas justice. Here is a look at the judge to whom the case has fallen.

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR.
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The biggest murder case before the world today, has landed in the court of a veteran judge who went to law school almost by accident.

The case is the trial of Jack Ruby, the strip-joint owner who shot Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy. Ruby could get the death penalty.

Tiny Courtroom

The courtroom is tiny, with seats for only 58 spectators. Pine paneling is so yellow it must have been painful to the eye when it was new. Now it has been mellowed by time and tobacco smoke. It is in the County Records building, at the intersection where President Kennedy was shot.

The judge is Joe B. Brown, a big, slow-moving, soft-spoken man who likes a relaxed atmosphere in his State Criminal District Court.

He enrolled in law school 32 years ago on a friend's casual suggestion.

Judge Brown is acutely aware—as, of course, any judge would be—that the eyes of the world will be focused on his courtroom.

There has been argument whether the trial should be covered live by television. It's up to Judge Brown, and so far he won't comment.

In fact, he will say nothing in advance about the trial except this: "I've been praying over it."

Then, an afterthought: "But that's the way any judge ought to feel about any trial."

Tries To Relax

Judge Brown tries to stay relaxed inside and outside his courtroom—partly, he explains, because he has had four heart attacks.

When you walk into his chambers for a visit, likely as not he'll say: "Put your feet up on the desk and let's be comfortable while we talk." And he sets the example.

Many people get the idea Judge Brown is over 6 feet tall. Actually, he is 5 feet, 11 inches.

It was 12:40 p.m.

He tapped on the door of a Marsalis Street bus which was stalled in the traffic. It wasn't a regular stop but the driver, C. J. McWatters, opened the door. Oswald took the third chair from the front on the right. He would get a good view of the scene of the crime as the bus passed Houston and Elm. There were only about five other passengers.

The bus inched ahead a block and at 12:44 p.m. the driver of a traffic-blocked car jumped out and ran toward the bus. He wanted to tell somebody, so he told McWatters.

"The president's been shot!" Oswald said nothing. In a moment he stood up, asked the driver for a transfer and got off. It was 12:45 p.m.

He crossed the street and hurried two blocks south to Commerce Street and jumped into a cab parked at the Greyhound bus depot. "Take me to 500 North Beckley," he ordered.

Cabbie William Whaley started on a zig-zag course, trying to escape the traffic. "What the hell you think happened out there?" he said. Whaley hadn't heard. Oswald didn't tell him. Neither spoke the rest of the trip.

It was 1 p.m.

Last Rites For JFK

At Parkland Hospital, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Oscar Huber dipped his right thumb into a vial of holy oils and marked a cross on the forehead of John F. Kennedy. "Per istam sanctam unctionem..." he murmured. "Through this holy anointing may God forgive you whatever sins you have committed."

At the Dallas News someone rushed into the display ad department with the news. Jack Ruby scurried into a nearby office where a television set was on. He heard the bulletin: "President Kennedy is dead."

After a few moments Ruby returned to Newman's desk and phoned his sister, Eva Grant. He was plainly upset.

"Don't worry," she told him. 8 lead moved Dec. 5 as 514-15-16: told im.

Ruby told Newman to cancel his ad. He got in his car and drove to Field and Commerce streets and scrawled "closed" across the door of the Carousel Club.

At Oneal's Funeral Home, a mile from Parkland Hospital, the phone rang and a voice identified himself as a Secret Service agent.

The idea of extra height comes from his bulk, his erect carriage and his shock of iron gray hair. He is 55 years old.

Reporters and lawyers who regularly work in Judge Brown's court say he runs it informally.

He permits spectators and principals to smoke. Only recently he and other district judges decided to wear judicial robes.

Jerry Biesel, a young attorney, worked for Judge Brown before receiving his law license. Biesel says the judge, lounging in his black leather chair, is inclined to allow considerable play between attorneys and sometimes takes part in it himself.

"He's always treated me right," says one veteran attorney. "He makes a pretty good judge," says another.

"The law is based on common sense," Brown says. "There isn't anything so technical but what the court can't explain it to the jury and witnesses. I don't want a stilted atmosphere."

"I want the jury panel to be relaxed—to feel they are among friends. There's nothing mystic about a trial."

Congress Needs Roll Call To Adjourn

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nothing comes easy in Congress these days. It took a roll call vote Wednesday for the House just to adjourn.

The 214-166 vote followed strict party lines with the Democrats forcing the adjournment to escape from a political and parliamentary trap laid for them by the Republicans over civil rights legislation.

The Republicans, in turn, were retaliating for what they regard as a Democratic attempt to make political capital out of civil rights.

The maneuvering began Monday with the filing of a petition by the Democratic leadership to take the civil rights bill away from the House Rules Committee, which doesn't plan hearings on the bill until next month.

The Republicans, opposing the petition as disruptive of orderly procedure, accused the Democrats of making a political gesture with no real intention of trying to get immediate action on the bill but aiming to blame GOP members for lack of enough signatures to make the petition effective.

"This is a legitimate call," the agent said. Vernon B. Oneal didn't doubt it for a moment. "Load a coffin into your hearse, get a police escort, and get over to Parkland as fast as humanly possible."

"What type of casket?" asked Oneal.

"The best you have." The undertaker selected a solid bronze double wall 6-foot, 6-inch amber-colored coffin with a beige velvet interior. His staff was out, so he got bookkeeper Ray Gleason and porter K. J. Brown to help him load it in the white hearse.

Back at the book depository, manager Truly began taking inventory of his employees. Several were missing—outside among the crowd, he supposed. Still, he went to a policeman and told him Lee Harvey Oswald wasn't there. He described the 24-year-old stock clerk.

"Frankly, I don't know why I singled him out," Truly said. "Perhaps because I had seen him shortly before."

The police bulletin to pick up Oswald went out at 1:15 p.m.

At that time Oswald was dashing through the living room of a mottled brown brick boarding house at 1026 North Beckley, 2½ miles away. The housekeeper, Earlene Roberts, was in the room.

"You sure are in a hurry," she said.

Oswald didn't answer. He crossed the parlor to his tiny $8-a-week room with the bare walls and ancient dresser. Somewhere within the room was also an oil company map of Dallas with the presidential motorcade route charted, and at the intersection of Houston and Elm an X-mark with a line tracing the path of the fatal bullets.

Oswald stripped off his dark jacket and donned a light-colored one. He left the house without a word.

He walked south and east and at 1:30 p.m. was on E. 10th street between Denver and Patton. Perhaps coincidentally, he was about half the distance in a straight line between his home and the apartment of Jack Ruby at 223 South Ewing. Ruby was still downtown.

At Parkland Hospital, Jacqueline Kennedy sat alone in a small room with her husband's body. A Secret Service man entered quietly with a cup of coffee, then left. Mrs. Kennedy rested her head gently against the hard bronze coffin.

Cruising alone in patrol car 10, officer Tippit spotted the man he had heard described as Oswald and ordered him to stop. As the officer stepped from the car Oswald pulled out a pistol and pulled the trigger three times. Tippit fell dead next to the left front wheel.

By 1:45 p.m. Oswald had covered eight blocks—to the Texas Theater at 231 West Jefferson where he was captured five minutes later on a tip from box office cashier Julie Postal.

"This is it," Oswald cried when officer N. M. McDonald closed in. But, of course, it was only part of it.

At Love Field aboard the presidential jet, Lyndon B. Johnson, his face drawn, placed his hand on a Bible and took the oath of office of president of the United States. It was 2:39 p.m.

Several hours later Jack Ruby got a look at Lee Oswald. He said it was his first.

Ruby always liked to mingle with newsmen and police, and at the Municipal Building on Friday night plenty of both were on hand. Ruby brought them coffee, hung around.

He was in the crowd of newsmen when Oswald was brought out for a quick interview, and heard the arrogant introvert deny he had killed the president or anybody else.

"He was so smirky," Ruby said of Oswald. "He was so smart, acted so proud of what he had done."

Then Jack Ruby went home. The next day he moped around his apartment. His roommate, George Senator, said he was distraught, kept repeating "Poor Jackie... those poor kids... those poor kids."

Next morning Ruby took Sheba, one of his three dachshunds, put her in his car and drove to the intersection of Houston and Elm. Already the greenwards on either side were sprinkled with floral sprays, the tributes of saddened townspeople.

Ruby remained a while then drove straight to the Municipal Building. He parked his car and again joined the reporters who were waiting for Oswald to appear for his transfer to the county jail.

The nation was a witness to the sickening scene that followed at 11:21 a.m.

At 1:07 p.m. Lee Harvey Oswald was dead of the gunshot wound inflicted by Jack Leon Ruby. And half a continent away the muffled drums were beating their melancholy tattoo for John Fitzgerald Kennedy's last mournful trip from the White House to the Capitol.

SEARCH FOR THE DEAD—Federal and local officials still continue their grim search for bodies in wreckage of airliner which plunged to earth near Elkton, Md., with the loss of all 81 persons aboard. Markers are scattered around the crash site. (AP Wirephoto)

Business, Labor, Government Make Peaceful Triumvirate

EDITOR'S NOTE—When they must disagree, business, labor and government now are learning to disagree peaceably, instead of butting heads, businessmen say. And it's about time, they add, reflecting on today's economic complexities. Businessmen described the changed relationships when interviewed by AP business news writer Darden Chambliss during a recent cross-country tour to test the nation's business mood.

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Economic name-calling is going out of style, businessmen say, and the nation is the stronger for it.

"The government no longer acts as though all businessmen are villains," says Robert Ingersoll, chairman of Borg-Warner Corp. in Chicago.

Labor and management are learning to work together quietly on complicated problems "rather than tossing a bagful of coals on the negotiating table at contract time," says a Boston businessman.

As a consequence of better working relationships "the fruits of industry are being better shared among consumers, industry and the laborers," says President Raymond Perring of Detroit Bank Trust Co.

Business Activity
And the strong rate of business activity, he says, reflects this balance.

That is the picture businessmen drew of business, labor and government relations in interviews during a coast-to-coast survey of economic thinking.

These businessmen say they're aware that others might not see things as they do. And they say they're not suggesting that perpetual peace has been declared. They still disagree with government and labor on many issues and expect more clashes with both in the future. But businessmen say they are encouraged in that debates today are conducted more fruitfully than the brickbat bashes of a few years ago.

Businessmen haven't forgotten the clash of 1962, when President Kennedy moved against a steel price increase with public attacks on steel leaders and pressure from the Justice Department and other agencies.

"But the wound is pretty well healed," says Vice President William Butler of Chase Manhattan Bank.

Something Learned

"I think we learned something from that snafu," says Paul McCracken of the University of Michigan and a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers under Dwight D. Eisenhower. Many people felt both sides were wrong, he said.

"It will be a long time before you see another one like it," Borg-Warner's Ingersoll says "it used to be politically smart to blame everything on businessmen, but we're getting away from that now."

Thomas Moses, president of the Investors Diversified Services, Minneapolis-based mutual fund, says "You don't run into Claghorns in Congress anymore. I think 95 per cent of those fellows really want to hear the business view of things."

William Wollbach, youthful president of the Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., says he sees tax changes last year on depreciation investment as revealing a better appreciation of the value of profits.

"It isn't such a nasty word now," Wollbach says.

Many see the proposed tax bill, which includes cuts in upper income and corporate taxes, as highlighting improved relations.

Dated Whippings

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—The Delaware supreme court ruled Friday that when a judge condemns a man to the whipping post he must name the exact date of the whipping.

No such date was fixed in the case of Talmadge R. Balser, 40, when he was sentenced to 20 lashes by Judge Stewart Lynch of superior court last March 17.

Consequently, the high court said in its opinion, written by Chief Justice Charles L. Terry, the sentence was illegal. It ordered Lynch to resentence Balser. It did, however, uphold Balser's conviction on a charge of participating in a $4 robbery. A habitual criminal charge against Balser was dropped at the time of the sentencing.

Lynch also sentenced Balser to 25 years in prison and fined him $500.

The judge said the whipping should be administered on the first secular day after receipt of a decision by the U.S. supreme court in another whipping case involving Franklin W. Cannon Jr.

Cannon also faces 20 lashes for violating parole in an automobile theft case. But his case has not yet gone before the U.S. supreme court. It is pending on an appeal before the state supreme court.

Cannon's counsel has argued that the sentence is excessive and unconstitutional. A brief filed by the state contends that the whipping is a constitutional punishment, that the punishment is not constitutionally disproportionate to the crime and that the sentence is not unconstitutional as it applies to Cannon.

Result Fruitful
As a result, he said, costs have been trimmed, turnaround time for ships has been shaved and the port is beginning to regain its traffic.

Business and labor leaders say these agreements involve a step at a time and battling out differences that will have to be gone through time and again.

But as C. Fred Borden of Kaiser Steel Corp. says of the labor-management plan he helped draft for sharing the benefits of automation efficiencies and for cushioning job dislocations:

"At least we're taking a cut at this problem of working things out together."

Americans Refuse Role As 'Suckers'

By JIM BECKER
PARIS (AP) — This was the year Americans decided to stop being suckers.

Advised by fast-selling books and urged on by well-traveled friends, Americans set out this year on a bargain vacation hunt.

The battle cry was: "Avoid the tourist traps." The instructions were: "Get off the beaten path, seek out the small hotels where Europeans stay, use public transportation and—above all—strike out on your own."

The results of the quest are n, and one of them is that American tourists have discovered that there are pitfalls n excess frugality.

A late-season crowd of tourists was located in Paris, huddled together for warmth, and they were sounded out on the results of the search for travel bargains.

"Well, for one thing we saved a lot of money by coming in the off-season," said a self-appointed spokesman.

"Yes, but everything I want to see is closed for the winter," said his wife.

"Over-all, I'd say you win a little and you lose a little," another man said. "Now today I figure I saved five dollars by staying in a small hotel instead of the big ones where Americans usually go. Only trouble is we have a room without a bath, so my wife and I had to get the maid to run the bath down the hall, it cost a buck and a half each, with a quarter tip."

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The shoppers who were having the most fun yesterday were the children with their allowances and the contents of their piggy banks, seriously making purchases for their parents. I'm not sure how Mommy will welcome the orange nail polish or Daddy the geranium cologne but they can be sure that they come from the heart.

I don't know whether or not they still have grab-bags in school. I don't remember a single gift I ever grabbed from one, but I do remember the hours I spent shopping for one to put in. This "It's more blessed to give than to receive" bit is truer than most of us admit.

I do know that the adult version of the grab bag is in full swing at the Christmas parties of a multitude of organizations, but that more and more of them have been adding the note "instead of exchanging gifts with each other, members will bring—"

That sentence has been completed in a multitude of ways: The Woman's Club with gifts for the Well-Baby Clinics, the Junior Women with their mitten tree; the Legion Aux. with stamped Christmas cards for veterans; the Music Club for the Young Artist's fund; the ITU and the Arlington Heights Chapel with hand-dressed dolls for the Salvation Army.

The Woodlake WSCS with goods for baskets for the needy, the Pressmen's Aux. with baskets for the County Home; the Acme Hose Aux. with filling stockings for the Salvation Army, the United Church Women with 394 Christmas stockings for the Allentown State Hospital.

The Monroe Garden Club with gifts for the Blind; the Bushkill Garden Club with gifts for shut-ins. The list is practically endless, and confutes the charge that Christmas has become too commercial.

While I'll admit that we all spend most of our money and shopping time in buying gifts for our own Giant Family Grab-bag, exchanging gifts with those who give to us, there is a little leaven in the fact that some of us spare a little of both in giving to those from whom we will receive no tangible gift. Only that most valuable gift of all: the warm glow of having been just a little bit unselfish.

Family Christmas Shares Program With Madonnas

Stroudsburg—The members of the Stroud Community Woman's Club looked in on a family observance of Christmas at their meeting on Thursday night at the Stroud Community House.

Mrs. Robert Clark and her young daughters, Shelley, Erin and Jocelyn, were the family group who shared a musical Christmas Eve. The girls read from the Christmas story and sang music of the caroling season with their mother as accompanist.

Madelyn Maloney as guest speaker had on display her Madonna collection, telling of the different characteristics captured in the paintings by many artists over the centuries. The Madonnas on display were part of her collection of 6,000.

Installation of new members was held under the direction of Mrs. Lester Katz with Mrs. William Howard, Mrs. Harold Cleaver, Mrs. William Brown, past presidents, and Mrs. Kenneth Werkheiser assisting.

Each new member was welcomed by Mrs. William Morgan, president, and presented with a Christmas corsage from the club. Installed were Mrs. Walter Cosola, Mrs. John Eckert, Mrs. Donald DeHaven, Mrs. Vernon Smale, Mrs. Harry W. Armitage, Mrs. Fran O. Armitage and Mrs. Everett Kidd.

At the business meeting, announcement was made of the change of place and date for the annual fashion show. It will be held at Camelback Ski Lodge on Feb. 11 and will feature fashions from Frances Burrows. There will be no board meeting before the regular meeting on Jan. 9. Mrs. Edward Driebe and Mrs. J. Paul Hart are co-chairmen of the Project Team 2 which is sponsoring the show.

Holiday refreshments were served by Mrs. Edward Driebe and Mrs. Walter Cosola and their committee from a table with an unusual angel and greens arrangements and crystal punch bowl.

Luncheon Rescheduled

Bushkill — The Bushkill Garden Club luncheon and Christmas party, postponed because of the storm on Thursday, has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 17, at 12:30 at the firehouse when the same schedule will be followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley James Miller

Stanley Miller Of Bangor Married In North Dakota

Bangor—At a candlelight ceremony before 165 guests in the First Presbyterian Church in Watford City, N. D., Miss Vicki Ward Yoast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Delbert Yoast, of Watford City, was wed to Stanley James Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Miller, of Bangor, on Friday evening, Nov. 29 at 8 o'clock.

The marriage was solemnized by the Rev. James E. Zeek, minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Watford City. The church was lit with four candles which were trimmed with pink roses and greens. Two baskets of pink roses and gladiolus were placed at the sides of the chancel.

The tapers were lighted by Miss Barbara Wanmaker, of Sturgis, S. D., a college friend and Mrs. Jack Clark, friend of the bride, of Glasgow, Mont.

Mrs. James E. Zeek, Watford City, was the organist.

Miss Doreen Quake, Watford City, was the maid of honor. Mrs. Bruce Yoast, Missoula, Mont., sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Karen Sondrol, Watford City, and Mrs. Larry Oterson, of Valley City, N. D., were bridesmaids.

They were dressed in identical dresses of floor length made of silk peau de soie in American Beauty rose. Their head-dresses were pillbox hats with tulle veils in the same color as the dresses.

Albert Smith, cousin of the bridegroom, of East Stroudsburg, was the best man. Bruce Yoast, brother of the bride,

NEW YORK — Miss Evelyn Davis Lisle, daughter of John Lisle of 24 Woodland Road, Swickley, Pa., and Dorothy Sayre Lisle, will be married this afternoon at 3:30 to Fred B. Rooney, U.S. Representative from the 15th Congressional District of which Monroe County is a part.

He is the son of Mrs. Fred B. Rooney Sr., and the last Mr. Rooney of Bethlehem and was elected to the 88th Congress in a special election in July of this year.

The wedding ceremony will be performed at St. John the Martyr Church, 252 East 71st St., New York City by Rev. Jerome J. Murphy. A reception is planned for the 21 Club, New York City, following the ceremony.

The matron of honor will be Mrs. Colby Cornish Coombs of Hartford, Conn. Best man will be Leo Rooney, the bridegroom's brother, of Plainville, Long Island, N.Y.

The bride attended Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn., and Braircliff College, Braircliff Manor, N.Y. Congressman Rooney is a graduate of the University of Georgia in Athens, Ga.

Poplar Valley WSCS Party At Dennis Home

Poplar Valley — The Poplar Valley Women's Society of Christian Service will hold a Christmas party on Dec. 17 at the home of Mrs. Helen Dennis. Members will exchange dollar gifts and children will bring a gift for the grab bag. Mrs. Tom Smith and Mrs. Warren Bond will assemble gifts for the older youngsters of the Valley on the list.

Plans for the party were made at the November meeting which was held at the Orien Reish home. Devotions were led by Mrs. Reish, Mrs. Ed Gum and Mrs. Carrie Dennis. Mrs. Paul Albert presided at the business meeting.

The members had filled and turned into the Council of Churches the gift stockings for Allentown State Hospital. They also donated $50 to the charge trustees for paying the debt on the parsonage. A letter was read from the missionary family, Rev. and Mrs. Gregory expressing their thanks for a gift.

Members were asked to consider having a dinner-less dinner in February with each of the 34 members contributing $5. It will be discussed at the January meeting.

Mrs. Thomas Smith served refreshments. Also present were Mrs. Fife, Mrs. Joan Bentzoni, Mrs. Verna Wagner, Mrs. Edith Percell and Mrs. Jane Greene.

WSCS To Honor Aged, Shut-ins At Christmas

Portland — The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Portland Methodist Church at their meeting in the social rooms planned for holiday service. They will present a Christmas service at the Barto Nursing Home at 3 p.m. Dec. 22. They will remember the shut-ins and will purchase poinsettias for the altar.

Mrs. John Ribble conducted the meeting and followed a silent tribute to the late President Kennedy.

Following the Christmas story from St. Luke by Miss Ruth Williams, the junior choir sang Christmas carols. Miss Heather Delp sang a solo, and Gail Ann LaBarre and Patsy Ribble sang a duet and the boys quartette sang. Mrs. Ribble was accompanist.

Miss Williams gave a talk to the children, "For the Lights of Christmas".

Following the program, there were games and refreshments. Mrs. Miriam Delp was chairman of the hostess committee which included Mrs. Louis Wheeler, Mrs. James Garafolo, Miss Ella Jelinek. Decorations were in the Christmas theme.

Mrs. Eugene Ambruch and Mrs. Sherman LaBarre were guests.

School Choruses Draw 300 For Morey PTA

Stroudsburg — Almost 300 Morey School parents turned out this week to attend the annual P.T.A. Christmas program. Under the direction of Mrs. Earl Willhoite, the special musical program featured the Morey school elementary choruses.

Mrs. Paul Lim, P.T.A. vice-president, was in charge of the business meeting. She announced that P.T.A. fund-raising projects have already provided enough revenue for the organization to purchase new gym mats for physical education classes. This was one of the first goals of present officers.

Mr. Lim also announced the Morey P.T.A. has donated $10 to the Future Teachers of America scholarship fund and $10 toward the purchase of new dental equipment to be used in Stroud Union schools.

Mrs. Armand Briganti, chairman of the ways and means committee, said the organization's family dance, which was held last week was "both a social and financial success". Mr. Briganti explained that part of the proceeds from the dance will be used to provide ice cream for the 500 students and teachers when the school Christmas party is held next week.

Winners of the parents' homeroom attendance prizes were: Mrs. Doris Barry, November, and Miss Gladys Wolten, December.

Four orange-and-rum-flavored sugar syrup over slices of fruit-cake and top with scoops of vanilla ice cream. Devastatingly rich, but good!

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

There's an M in Christmas! and that M stands for the delighted Mmmmmmm of appreciation one's family and friends use to express approval of a very delicious fruit cake (like those by Mrs. Carver or Crosse and Blackwell), or the exciting magnificence of the Christmas decorations, or dinner table. (Those Christmas decorations are the very finest, of course, when they come from Wyckoff's Trim-a-Tree Shop . . . and the china . . . linens . . . silver . . . and decorative arrangements sold here in our store are choice. Just the thought of what one could do for the home and the table by shopping Wyckoff's, evokes the loudest Mmmmmmm from me that I can possibly "hum."

The M in Christmas also stands for magic. And magic is many things. It is something that happens to even a rather plain woman when she stands before a mirror and tries on one of the colorful, glittering cocktail and evening hats in our Millinery department. No woman can be less than beautiful when she is crowned with a turban of gold lame . . . a swirl of mink, edged perhaps with beaded braid . . . a brocade toque of East Indian colors sparked with gold threads . . . or a veiled crown of braided, heavenly blue velvet.

The M in Christmas is for the magic that suddenly makes the world explode into a rosy globe of glory, when a woman wears her first filmy (alright, wickedly feminine) negligee—of black lace over the sheerest nylon tricot . . . of metallic brocade, with buttons of pearl and rhinestone, and cuffs of fur . . . of quilted silk paisley with mandarin collar . . . or of a miraculous manmade fur, white, with appliques of satin flowers to match the flowered chiffon scarf that ties beneath the collar. All these, and more are here . . . right here . . . at WYCKOFF'S.

The M in Christmas is for the soft, glamorous warmth of mohair . . . mohair sweaters imported from Italy, and of such heavenly colors! Coral . . . pink . . . turquoise . . . blue. Words can't describe how they make a girl feel, but this I know, every feminine heart loves them rapturously. The cardigans are 15.00 and the pullovers just 13.00 in our Sportswear department. And in the same department there is another big M to Mmmmm about!—Majorette blouses at 6.00, in floral prints that are lush. We have other blouses too . . . Lady Van Heusen, for instance, the very feminine M-an tailored blouse priced from 5.00 to 11.00.

M is for Mighty Macs . . . those incredibly warm, unbelievably water repellent, wind 'n' weather rejecting "outer clothes" for boys and men whose activities expose them to the elements. Mighty Macs are made of their very own specially woven fabrics, and have extra-duty zippers, etc. Our Boys' Department stocks sizes 3 to 7 in a price range of 19.95 to 27.95. Our young men's department carries sizes up to goodness-knows-what in a price range from 22.95 to 39.98.

M is for the Her Majesty slips little girls and their big sisters love . . . slips tailored or bouffant, depending upon the young lady's tastes. M is for the musical lamps young children enjoy having near their bed. (We do have some adorable one's at Wyckoff's!) M is for the machete in our Boy Scout department; for mess kits too. (You'd be surprised how many parents of young people buy them Scouting or Brownie equipment at Christmas time.)

M is for Mademoiselle shoes . . . so sleek, so chic, so very well made of such high style. Our Shoe Department has them in lizard . . . and bright embroidery . . . and calf.

Mmmmm . . . a gal could rave on forever! (But more next week.)

Food For Holiday Visitors, Human And Raccoons

By Linda Pipher

Stroudsburg — There's nothing like living in the country! Just ask the gals who live on Norton Road, Stroudsburg. They had an experience recently that was funny to all of them except poor hostess, Donna Pifer.

She had invited the neighbors in for an evening and prepared two trays of nibbling food — cheese, cold cuts, crackers, etc. — which I understand were as pretty as a magazine picture. When the one tray looked almost empty she asked her husband, Harry, to go out on the porch and bring the other tray in.

Harry went out to the porch, looked around, and came back and asked Donna what tray? She told him again, patiently, the one with the food on it that she had put on the porch to keep cool as she didn't have room in her refrigerator. Harry went out and looked again but didn't see it. Donna, with that I-might-as-well-do-it-myself attitude stormed out to the porch, only to find that Harry wasn't blind, the tray was gone.

They found it, eventually, thirty feet from the house where an unsociable but hungry raccoon had dragged it and helped himself to everything but the cheese!

So let that be a lesson to you! Don't use your porch for a refrigerator unless it's screened in or you're sure you've prepared food that is human appealing, not animal appealing!

Looking for a new dip? Here's one that made a hit at my house. It's very "cheesy" — Camembert cheese is strong, so give it to lovers of cheese. Cook ½ pound bacon until crisp and break into the blender, add:

- ¼ cup sour cream
- ½ pound cream cheese
- 3 sections Camembert cheese
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- dash cayenne pepper

Blend until smooth and refrigerate until ready to serve. (If you don't have a blender, crumble cooked bacon very fine before adding other ingredients.)

Speaking of cheese, there's nothing easier to serve for an open house or for a quick snack when unexpected company drops in over the holidays. Keep Edam and Roquefort cheese in your refrigerator and then put it on a tray as pictured above along with crackers and a bunch of grapes. The flavors are delicious together. Add a cup of coffee, and you couldn't have a nicer snack!

- ½ pound package cream cheese
- 1 teaspoon onion juice
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- 1 egg yolk
- salt
- 24 small bread rounds
- 2 cans deviled ham (2½ oz. each)

Cut rounds out of bread with a small round cookie cutter. Toast on one side. Spread the untoasted sides with deviled ham.

Blend together the cheese, onion, juice, baking powder, egg yolk and salt to taste. Spread on top of deviled ham. Place on cookie sheet and bake in 375 oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until puffed and brown. Serve hot. Everyone likes to nibble nuts. Prepare these now for the holidays.

Icy Almonds: Heat 1 cup whole blanched almonds with ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a heavy skillet over medium heat, stirring constantly, until almonds are toasted and sugar is golden brown, about 15 minutes. Stir in ½ teaspoon vanilla. Spread nuts on a sheet of aluminum foil; sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Cool; break into 2 or 3 nut clusters.

Spicy Pecans: Beat 1 cup white slightly with 2 tablespoons sugar; stir in 1 can (6 oz.) pecans until well moistened. Combine two-thirds cup sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ginger, add ¼ cup cornstarch; sift onto shallow pan; toss nuts in mixture until well coated. Bake in slow 250 oven for 1½ hours, stirring often. Makes about ¼ pound.

Smoky Peanuts: Combine one-third cup liquid smoke and one-third cup water in small saucepan; heat to boiling. Empty 1 can (13½ oz.) salted peanuts into shallow pan. Pour liquid smoke-water mixture over; let stand 1 hour. Drain off liquid; spread nuts out in pan. Toast in slow oven (250) 1 hour. Toss nuts with 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and salt to taste. Makes ¼ pound. It's no fun watching calories at Christmastime, so you might as well make some candy, too:

Old Fashioned Butter Crunch
2 cups finely chopped almonds
1 cup butter or margarine

1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
2 tablespoons water
1 package (12 oz.) chocolate chips, melted
Spread almonds in shallow pan; toast in moderate oven, until golden. Melt butter or margarine in large heavy saucepan; add sugar, corn syrup, and water. Cook, stirring often, to hard-crack stage (300) on candy thermometer. Remove from heat; stir in 1 cup toasted almonds. Pour quickly into 13x9x2 inch pan; cool completely. When set, turn out in one piece on wax paper. Spread half the melted chocolate over top; sprinkle with ½ cup almonds; let set. Turn candy over; spread with remaining chocolate; sprinkle with remaining almonds. Let stand until chocolate sets. Break into pieces.

Junior Woman's Club Adds Adopted Boy To Their Own

Stroudsburg — Members of the Stroudsburg Junior Woman's Club have financially "adopted" Daniel D. Farinas, an eight-year-old Filipino boy through Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., 352 Park Ave., New York. They have promised to contribute $15 a month for the child's support for at least a year.

"Adoption through Foster Parents' Plan is financial, not legal, and is personalized by the fact that there is a monthly exchange of letters between the child and the foster parents."

The local club has received a picture and case history of their small charge. Daniel lives in Quezon City about 6 miles from Manila with his mother, a half-sister, Eva, 16, and half brother Alfred, and his own sister, Laura, 12 and four brothers, Johnny 10, Jose, 5, Joel, 3, and Noel, 11 months. The father is in a penal colony serving an eight-year prison term.

His mother sells vegetables, fish and other foods in the market place, earning about 60 cents a day. The family lives in an old wooden shack in a squatter's area in poverty and squalor. The children have had to quit school as the mother cannot afford to send them.

Daniel is a shy child but has a happy disposition. He is cooperative and thoughtful and helpful in the household. He has dreams of the future. One of them is to become somebody. Daniel will be able to enter second grade with the assistance provided under the Foster Parents' Plan. He receives a cash grant of $8 as well as food, clothing and special medical care, in addition to the security and knowledge that the Junior Women care about him and his family.

Foster Parents Plan has staffed headquarters in Italy, Greece, Korea, Hong Kong, Viet Nam, the Philippines, Colombia and Ecuador to provide the foster child with on-the-spot guidance and counseling. In 27 years, the plan has succeeded in rehabilitating 76,000 children of 27 nationalities. Daniel is one of more than 31,000 foster children on the roster.

Once enrolled a foster child remains in PLAN care until he reaches maturity or independence.

Pilgrims Land At Clappers For Birthday

Shawnee-on-Delaware — A Pilgrim's Party marked the fourth birthday of Rhonda Margaret Clapper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Clapper of Shawnee. Landing by car rather than boat, the present-day Pilgrims came in costume.

They spent an afternoon hunting for Indian Corn and Settler's Gold, with Susan Marvin finding the most. Dawn DePender was closest at pinning the feathers on the turkey.

After drawing holiday pictures on the party tablecloth, they decorated their own cupcakes and enjoyed refreshments. Gifts were exchanged among the guests.

They were Ellen Yetter, Susan Marvin, Dawn DePender, Renee Clapper and Rhonda Clapper.

Warrior Mat Squad Wins

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Warrior grapplers of East Stroudsburg State College yesterday registered their third straight victory of the season, deciding Indiana State University, 27-10.

Indiana, one of the mat powerhouses of the Midwest, is currently making an Eastern swing through the United States. The Terre Haute grapplers last year finished third in the NAIA tournament.

"It was really a big victory for us," exclaimed Coach Red Witman following the triumph. "They're a real power in wrestling."

The Warriors picked up five decisions and three pins to gain the verdict.

Still Unbeaten

Six of the ESSC grapplers remained undefeated following the match. They are Jan Dutt, Bob Guzzo, John Hopkins, Chet Dalgiewicz, Nud Lawrence and Roy Miller.

Dutt, a freshman in the 115-pound division, decided John Welliver, winner last week of the Indiana State College and University Wrestling Tournament. The score was 13-8.

Guzzo also decided an Indiana State College champion, Tom Porter, by a 6-3 count.

ESSC travels to Shippensburg today for an afternoon match. The Warriors will be seeking to gain their first triumph over the Shippensburg squad.

The scores:

115—Jan Dutt (ESSC) dec. John Welliver, 13-8.

123—Bob Guzzo (ESSC) dec. Tom Porter, 6-3.

130—Dwight Bomberger (ESSC) pinned Jim Hall, 7-58.

137—John Hopkins dec. Mike Berndt, 6-3.

147—Bud Lawrence (ESSC) and Charles Elwood, 3-3 draw.

157—Chet Dalgiewicz (ESSC) pinned Bob Berndt, 5-45.

167—Dick Bell (ESSC) dec. Conwood Bliven, 7-5.

177—Elwood Freeze (Ind.) dec. Frank Blizard, 5-2.

191—Roy Miller (ESSC) dec. Pollard Beckham, 2-0.

Unl.—Ron Matakitis (ESSC) pinned George King.

Pen Argyl Gains First Hoop Victory Of Season

PEN ARGYL — The Green Knights of Pen Argyl last night gained their first hoop triumph of the season and at the same time avenged a previous loss to Notre Dame by winning, 72-60.

The visiting Crusaders, who had spoiled the season's opener for Pen Argyl with a 60-55 verdict over the Knights, trailed all the way in this battle.

The score was tied only once — and that was at the start of the game when the Crusaders knotted the count at 3-3.

But the Knights of Coach Frank Vark quickly regained the lead and stayed ahead for the rest of the night.

The defeat also was the first of the season for Notre Dame. Dave Turitto continued to play brilliantly for the Knights, taking game scoring honors with 26 points on 10 field goals and six foul shots. Ron Singer and John Oliver each banged in 11 points for the winners, while Ray Nottle also reached double figures with 10 points.

Dave Posivak was the top point - getter for the Crusaders with 20 points, hitting for 18 of them from the field. Nat Kacar dumped in 11 points while Steve Polahah netted 10.

The Knights gained a 15-8 lead at the end of the first quarter but Notre Dame narrowed the count at halftime to 31-28 as the Crusaders outscored the Knights by a 20-16 spread in the second session behind the sharpshooting of Posivak.

But after that it was all Pen Argyl as the Knights outscored the visitors by 17-13 in the third quarter, and by 24-19 in the final frame.

Delaware Valley Loses To Eastburg, 63 To 58

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Cavaliers of East Stroudsburg High School last night broke open a nip-and-tuck battle in the final period of play to notch their first win of the season over visiting Delaware Valley, 63-58.

Shooting with a deadly eye from the foul line, the Cavaliers hit on 25 of 34 free throws, but they were erratic from the floor where they hit on only 19 of 69 shots.

Delaware Valley, on the other hand, hit on nearly half its shots from the floor—25 of 52. But the Warriors of Coach Bob Rhoades pumped in only eight of 14 attempts from the foul line.

For Delaware Valley, it was the third straight loss of the campaign against no victories.

East Stroudsburg is all-even at 1-1 and seeks to go over the 500 mark tonight at Pocono Mountain.

Lead Changes
The lead changed hands a total of 14 times in last night's contest — six times in the first period, twice in the second and six more in the third.

But the Cavaliers finally managed to pull away in the final frame after entering that period with a scant 47-46 edge.

Bill Reese, Russ Scott, Bob LaBar and Mike Sydelnik started to hit the cords in furious fashion at the very start of the final quarter which supplied a seven-point bulge — largest of the game — at 55-48.

Delaware Valley battled back gamely, however, slicing the margin to 56-54 with less than three minutes remaining as the visitors started to connect on long push shots. But that was close as the Warriors managed as Reese and Scott alternated frequent trips to the foul line where the game was actually won.

Scott led the Cavaliers in scoring with 24 points. Reese pumped in 16 for the winners and Doug Hilyard added 13.

Delaware's Howie Orben, a 6-5 junior, tallied 23 in a losing cause.

AP Writer Picks Steelers To Win

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Last week, as a little bonus, we gave you the Pittsburgh Steelers as the choice for the Eastern Division title of the National Football League. That was a week ahead of time.

This week, we give you the Steelers as the NFL champions, over the Chicago Bears on Dec. 29. This is known as looking ahead.

The picks:
Pittsburgh 17, New York 14—It looks like snow for this showdown, winner-take-all game. That should help the Steelers, who grind it out, as opposed to the Giants, whose offense starts and ends with Y. A. Tittle's passing.

Chicago 21, Detroit 17—A strong temptation to go with the Lions, who tied the Packers and smeared the Browns their last two. But Chicago defense should pull the Bears through.

Green Bay 38, San Francisco 10—A Saturday game, and the Packers must win to keep their title hopes alive. If they do, and the Bears lose, the Packers are Western champs for fourth straight year.

Cleveland 28, Washington 21—Browns were flat last week, but the Redskins can't stop Jimmy Brown. In fact, the Redskins can't stop anybody this year.

St. Louis 31, Dallas 21—Cards are a real good team, and the Cowboys make too many mistakes.

Minnesota 24, Philadelphia 21

People In The Spotlight

Rep. Robert Taft, Jr., R-Ohio, announced he would be "happy to run for the Senate on the same ticket" with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Taft announced his candidacy for the Republican senatorial nomination last Friday in Cleveland. He was quoted at the time as saying a national GOP ticket headed by Goldwater "would make it difficult" for Taft's senatorial campaign in Ohio.

"This was inaccurate and not as stated by me," Taft said in Thursday's statement.

President-elect Chung Hwee-park of South Korea has chosen a cabinet designed to get de-railled relations with the United States back on the track.

Relations chilled when the general led a military junta which overthrew the elected, U.S.-backed civilian government of Premier John M. Chang in May, 1961.

The junta accused Washington of using its massive U.S. aid as a political weapon against the regime. This was denied.

Named as premier is Dr. Choi Doo-sun, 63, Western-educated former publisher and recently president of the Korean Red Cross. He has been an observer at the United Nations and took part in a good will mission to Washington.

Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, Roman Catholic vicar of U.S. military forces, will spend Christmas this year at the South Pole.

At a remote spot of the globe once visited by only the most intrepid explorers, the cardinal will celebrate Mass Christmas Eve at America's Amundsen-Scott station at the South Pole.

Cardinal Spellman has been overseas at Christmas for several years.

Rep. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., says Cape Canaveral has not been officially renamed Cape Kennedy.

"The name change will not be official unless it is acted on by the Florida legislature," Gurney said in a statement. The cape is in Gurney's congressional district.

Its name was changed by proclamation of President Johnson to honor the late President John F. Kennedy.

Theodore Heuss, first president of the West German government which emerged from the ashes of World War II, died Thursday night at the family's Stuttgart home at the age of 79.

His physician son, Dr. Ernst Heuss, made the announcement. Heuss died from a lingering illness that last August caused amputation of his left leg. Dr. Heuss gave circulatory failure as the cause of death.

Dr. Heuss said the ex-president never fully recovered from the amputation to halt the spread of gangrene and a cold turn in the weather brought on the last crisis.

Prosecution Ruled Improper

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The State Superior Court held Thursday that an officer of a corporation cannot be accused by the Commonwealth of embezzlement of sales taxes not turned over to the department of revenue, because, under the law, he isn't a tax collector.

Judge J. Colvin Wright wrote the unanimous opinion affirming an order of the Allegheny County quarter sessions court. The lower court dismissed an indictment of Marcus Shafer, president of the Keystone Universal Carpet Corp. of Pittsburgh.

Shafer was indicted last January on a charge of embezzlement for alleged failure to turn over $30,177 in sales tax between December, 1961, and June, 1962.

The opinion stated that since the prosecution of Shafer was improper, and had been previously thrown out by the lower court, it could not rule on the contention that the corporation actually was the vendor, and that any prosecution by the state should have been instituted against the firm, and not against its officers as individuals.

State News Roundup

Survivors File Suits

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — Survivors of 30 coal miners killed in the Robena Mine explosion filed suits this week asking damages in excess of $300,000 against U.S. Steel Corp., the mine owner, and 27 officials and employees of the firm.

The complaints were filed in Greene County Court in behalf of 29 widows and a son of the miners. A total of 37 men were killed in the blast in the Robena No. 3 mine near here on Dec. 6, 1962.

The defendants are nine employees and 18 officials, including Board Chairman Roger Blough. The suits contend the defendants were negligent and careless and that dangerous and hazardous conditions existed at the mine.

Goldwater's Position Changes

HARRISBURG (AP) — A leading Pennsylvania backer of Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater said yesterday his position has changed in the wake of the tragic death of President John F. Kennedy.

Paul Huges, Allegheny County Republican chairman, declared

"there has been a change in everybody's position," following a half-hour meeting with Gov. Scranton.

Huges declined to say how his Goldwater position has changed because of the current 30-day moratorium in honor of the late President Kennedy.

Open Burning Violators Warned

HARRISBURG (AP) — Directives were issued by the State Air Pollution Commission to cease open burning operations by firms in Lehigh and Lackawanna Counties.

Two other companies were asked to abate air pollution problems.

The firm of Harold Walbert of New Tripoli, Lehigh County, was ordered to stop burning insulated wire at a site near New Smithville.

The Torch Lumber Co., Carbondale, Lackawanna County, was directed to discontinue open burning of wood scraps.

The Hercules Alcor Chemical Co., of Seven Stars, Adams County, was given 30 days to submit a plan for abating the emission of fumes.

The General Battery & Ceramics Co., of Laureldale, Berks County, also was given 30 days to prepare a plan for abating gas emissions from a secondary lead smelter.

Christmas

It's an old family custom. I hang up my stocking for Santa to fill. Then everyone has to be very quiet while Daddy reads the Christmas Story from our big family Bible . . . about the Shepherds . . . how they watched . . . and listened. That's why they knew Jesus had come: because they listened!

Again today, Christmas brings good tidings . . . of peace on earth . . . good will toward men. Church bells ring . . . children sing carols . . . the Story of Bethlehem is told again.

It means Joy to the world: if we listen!

New Wallenpaupack High Seen Occupied By Feb. 3

NEWFOUNDLAND — "100 per cent guaranteed occupancy" of the new junior-senior high school building on Lake Wallenpaupack by February 3 was announced by Fred Schoenagel, clerk of the works at the project, during the December meeting of the Wallenpaupack Area Joint School Board at Hawley.

"There should be no holdup in completion of the school at all," Schoenagel noted, in response to a question by a board member.

Dr. Richard Porter and Bruce Worrell were re-elected president and vice president of the board, respectively.

Mrs. Evelyn Haldaman, Greene Township, was the only new director introduced at the session. She succeeds Lawrence Grimm, who had completed 18 years as a director.

Mrs. Olive Murphy, treasurer, reported a bank balance of $109,479.30. Bills totaling $4,455.90 were ordered paid.

The board approved the motion that the auditorium and stage floors be finished before bleachers and stage equipment is moved in for installation.

Work needed to be done in all schools in the jointure should be listed for the budget committee by January, it was announced.

The board approved the following: the Degler-Whiting bid of $8,490 for closed deck bleachers; the choice of carpeting for the library; purchase of a wall-mounted unit for key storage, and a combination floor machine; 50 pencil sharpeners; Industrial Electronics bid of $8,513.40 for the language laboratory.

Cafeteria Help

Hired for the new cafeteria were Mrs. Norma Seiler, cook manager; Bernice Martin, Martha Billard and Florence Stroe-nig, assistants; and Mary Gumble and Edna Branch, helpers.

A bus shelter at Lobb's corners was approved upon the recommendation of the transportation committee.

Mrs. Evelyn Biglin was hired as a secretary, and Miss Gabrielle Brown, a 1963 graduate of Pennsylvania State University, was hired to succeed Mrs. Anne Jackson, in the Hawley elementary staff.

It was announced that the Alumni Fund drive for funds for the stage curtains will continue until December 16. Donations will be welcomed from Alumni of both Hawley and Southern Wayne schools, and from interested residents of the nine school districts involved in the jointure.

To Donate Flag

The Hawley VFW Post notified the board that they will donate a flag for the new school, and have arranged that it be flown over the capitol in Washington before its presentation.

John Cunningham, Newfoundland, was hired by the board to succeed Joseph Moraski as janitor in the Southern Wayne School beginning in January. Mr. Moraski will join the Wallenpaupack School janitorial staff.

Charles Boone, East Stroudsburg

EAST STROUDSBURG — Charles Boone, 83, died yesterday at 12:50 p.m. in his home at Smith St., East Stroudsburg. He had been in failing health the past five years.

He was born in County Derry, Ireland, and had lived in East Stroudsburg the past 19 years. He had also lived in Philadelphia.

Mr. Boone was a member of the First Baptist Church in East Stroudsburg.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian Boone, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Lillian Savage, of East Stroudsburg; three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren; one brother, David Boone of Westmont, N.J., and a sister, Mrs. Martha Hamilton of Ireland.

Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the Lanterman Funeral Home with the Rev. Norman R. Savage officiating. Burial will be in the Prospect Cemetery.

Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Sunday after 7 p.m.

Ruth Pipher, California

STROUDSBURG — Word has been received of the death of Ruth Pipher, wife of Major Robert Pipher and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Caroline E. Pipher of Stroudsburg, at their home in Hawthorne, Cal.

Mrs. Pipher, originally from Scranton, has been ill for the past three years and seriously ill the past year. They have two children.

Major Pipher has been stationed in California for the past seven years where he is with the U.S. Air Force on the Moon Project.

Funeral services will be private and it is requested that no flowers be sent.

Transportation Approval Sought

POCONO MANOR — The Pocono Manor Assn. has applied to the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission for permission to provide public transportation between the resort, Scranton - Wilkes - Barre Airport at Avoca; Allentown-Bethlehem - Easton Airport at Catsaqua and the new Camelback Ski Area at Tannersville.

A public hearing on the application will be held in Monroe County Courthouse at Stroudsburg on Monday, Dec. 23, at 10 a.m.

Bangor Unit Installs Officers

BANGOR — Everett J. Price, Bangor R.D. 1, was elected and installed as Worshipful Master at the annual meeting of Bangor Lodge, No. 565, F.&A.M., in Masonic Hall, First National Bank Building, last evening. He succeeds John D. Hamm, Jr. Price is employed by the Metropolitan Edison Co. He is a member of the Board of Deacons and a Sunday School teacher in the Presbyterian Church, Bangor. He is married to the former Margaret A. Pritchard and is the father of a son, Richard, 5.

Others installed were Clarence D. Beagle, Jr., senior warden; Bryden O. Strunk, treasurer; Henry P. Williams, secretary; David Stoddard, representative in grand lodge. Re-elected as trustees were Carl F. Kressler, Charles T. Heard, Jr., and Theodore M. Hatter. Installing officers were Hamm, Price, Beagle, and David H. Repsher, past master.

Edward J. Linaberry, secretary for the past four years, declined re-election in order to have more time for his duties as 50th District Chairman of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania's Committee on Masonic Culture. He will also serve as a lodge instructor of work.

The presentation of the American flag was performed in honor of the memory of the late President John F. Kennedy.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Lower Divorce Rate In Monroe

(Special to the Record)
NEW YORK — What is Monroe County's record with respect to divorce? How does it compare with the record in other communities?

Locally, it is found, fewer marriages have been ending in divorce or separation than in the United States as a whole.

As a consequence, the amount of family dislocation, together with the many social problems that follow in its wake, are somewhat smaller than average.

The extent of these break-ups, which are considered to be a contributing factor to child delinquency, is brought out in Government figures which show that there were more than 400,000 divorces in the United States in 1962.

During the same period, about 1,600,000 marriages took place, so that one couple was divorced for every four that got married.

A closer look at the situation is taken in a report on the trend in divorce, just released by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and in data issued by the Department of Commerce.

In Monroe County, it is shown, there are 569 men and women who are divorced and 427 who are separated. The total is 996.

In terms of the local population, this means that 34 out of every 1,000 residents over the age of 14 are either divorced or separated.

The rate is lower than that in the rest of the United States, where it averages 43 per 1,000. It is also below the 37 per 1,000 reported for the State of Pennsylvania.

Despite the increase in the number of divorces each year, there has been no increase in the rate, it is noted. The number is larger because the population is larger.

As a matter of fact, since the end of World War II, when the divorce rate hit its all-time high, it has been declining steadily.

Marry Second Time
A majority of those who get divorced marry a second time. The figures show that there are 25 such persons in the United States for every one who is currently in the divorced column. Applying this average to Monroe County, there are some 1,423 men and women locally who were once divorced and who are now remarried.

MORA Plans Joint Yule Party Dec. 18

STROUDSBURG — The MORA Club's next meeting will be a joint Christmas party-meeting with the Leisure Hour Club at the YMCA on Dec. 18. All club meetings falling on holidays have been cancelled, according to Lawrence Bush, club secretary.

At their last meeting MORA members heard a talk on New Guinea given by Mr. and Mrs. Emile Secuws, who at one time served in that country as co-workers of the Netherlands Christian Medical Mission.

Mrs. Secuws is presently a nurse at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The club was thanked for the entertainment it provided for the shut-ins at the Monroe County Home for the Aged.

NASA Postpones Saturn Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration postponed Thursday the proposed launch of the fifth Saturn I space vehicle "due to technical difficulties."

The craft, the most powerful and most heavily instrumented rocket yet developed by the United States, was to have been launched Dec. 18.

The new launch date is expected to be in late January.
